from Britton (1980). The nominate race is common in grasslands and cultivation throughout E. Africa, including Zanzibar, Pemba and Mafia, typically in association with domestic stock and large game animals. Nesting has been recorded at Kisumu (annual), Garsen, Naivasha, Baringo, Lake Turkana, Lake Jipe, Manyara, Ngorongoro, Wembere, Rukwa, Entebbe and Jinja. The existence of so few colonies, mainly involving quite small numbers, suggests that the majority of birds seen in E. Africa breed elsewhere. South African ringed birds have been recovered in Tanzania and Uganda.
